We Live to Discover

Jack Wolfskin inspires people to discover the outdoors - because the more we know the natural world, the more we love and care for it. We are the only apparel, footwear, and equipment provider that delivers sustainable German design and engineering to inspire and enable more outdoor discovery.

Corporate Responsibility

At Jack Wolfskin we Live to Discover. The conservation of our forests, rivers, lakes, deserts and seas is one of our top priorities. We never stop working to further optimize our environmental commitment—at all levels. Big and small.

Products made of recycled material, our ban on PFCs, rejecting the use of fur and Angora wool—our sustainability goals spur us on to develop green and innovative materials. For us, “living to discover” not only means enjoying the natural world, but doing everything in our power to preserve and protect it.

Proactively taking responsibility for social issues is a part of our corporate identity and culture. We firmly believe that fairness, environmental awareness and corporate social responsibility do not run contrary to the success of our company.

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Safe and fair working conditions at the production sites of our suppliers are a fundamental requirement for any business relationship. All manufacturers have committed to complying with our Code of Conduct. We help them meet this commitment—and we have already achieved a great deal together.

TRANSPARENT SUPPLY CHAIN

Our product supply chains are highly complex, which is why it is so important for us to know those involved in our supply chain and to make the chain sustainable. We publish detailed information about each and every one of our suppliers for everyone to see for transparency.
